ARE OUR SENSES LESS KEEN ASKS PARKER

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The astonishing fact that our senses are less keen than they were in the past, has been proved by a series of experiments conducted by a French scientist, M. J. Parker.
The experiments were conducted in the laboratory of the French Institute of Science, and the results were as follows:
The first experiment was conducted with a series of colored discs, and the results showed that the human eye is less sensitive to color than it was in the past. The second experiment was conducted with a series of musical notes, and the results showed that the human ear is less sensitive to sound than it was in the past. The third experiment was conducted with a series of odors,
and the results showed that the human nose is less sensitive to smell than it was in the past. The fourth experiment was conducted with a series of tastes, and the results showed that the human tongue is less sensitive to taste than it was in the past. The fifth experiment was conducted with a series of touch, and the results showed that the human hand is less sensitive to touch than it was in the past. The sixth experiment was conducted with a series of pain, and the results showed that the human body is less sensitive to pain than it was in the past. The seventh experiment was conducted with a series of heat, and the results showed that the

AUTO HITS GIRL DASHING AFTER ESCAPED BALLOON

Bernice Brown, Six Years Old, Struck by Tearing Car When She Tries to Recover Toy

Two little girls, their hair tossed by the breeze, tripped along the streets. The sun cast its dancing rays upon their brightly colored dresses and their eyes glinted as diamonds. Each of the tots held a toy balloon by a string, the brilliantly colored things danced in the wind as a boat on a rolling sea. Bernice Brown, aged 6, suddenly saw that the string to her balloon had broken. It was blown across the street and she raced away in pursuit. Three times she nearly caught the balloon, but a slight gust of wind would carry it further away from her. Her eyes danced as she ran after the toy. People on the street stopped and smiled. Neither they nor Bernice saw an approaching automobile. The driver of the car, Harry Jones, slackened its speed to a minimum. He turned to the left but could not avoid striking the little girl. Bystanders tried to shout a warning, then saw the baby, a second before happy in her chase for the balloon, lying on the street unconscious. The driver of the automobile was not to blame. He had turned his car clear into the sidewalk in order to avoid the collision. The little girl was carried into the Gough House pharmacy and the police were notified. Then she was taken in the ambulance to her home at 219 North Nevada avenue. Her injuries, it was said last night, are not serious. None of those who witnessed the accident place any blame on the driver.

COLORADO CITY NOT FAIR TO AUTOIST, SAYS PURCELL

Law Concerning Lights Not Drafted to Compel Lighting Immediately After Sundown, He Declares

Colorado City officials are doing motorists an injustice by compelling them to carry lights on their automobiles from sunset to sunrise, in the opinion of District Attorney Purcell. Mr. Purcell has been investigating conditions in the city and has advised the Automobile club to immediately take up the matter with the proper authorities.

Several persons already have been arrested and fined by Colorado City authorities for failure to have automobile lamps lighted a few moments after sundown and while the daylight was still good, Mr. Purcell said yesterday. Under the law, offenders may be summarily fined by any justice of the peace, and the district attorney says he will issue an order at once to justices to the effect that offenders be given the right to trial.

"Often machines may be operated with perfect safety for an hour after sunset without lights," said Mr. Purcell. "The law was not drafted to compel motorists to carry lights on their machines immediately after sundown; it is meant to protect the public after darkness by giving the authorities means of dealing with the fellows who won't carry lights at any time."

The company has been extremely successful in opening a number of its wells by "shooting," but the last attempt proved the most satisfactory of all.

SANTA CLAUS MAKES HIS BOW AT KAUFMAN'S STORE

Formal Opening of Toy Department Yesterday Hundreds of New and Novel Playthings Pleased

Santa Claus became a real personage in the minds of several thousand Colorado Springs youngsters yesterday, when the formal opening of the toy department of the Kaufman store for the holiday season took place, and whenever you saw a happy boy or girl with a great big automatic balloon, you were assured that the little tot had visited the big basement of the Kaufman store, which is stocked from end to end with Christmas toys. The balloons given away yesterday are a novelty in that they can be blown up by the children themselves, an automatic valve preventing the air from escaping. Every youngster who went to the store was given a balloon, and many tried to repeat, in some cases eluding the vigilance of watchful clerks and getting another balloon.

The idea of having the opening yesterday is to encourage early shopping, and make it easier for both buyers and salespeople, and the effect was noticeable in the demand for toys to be delivered later. The stock this year is large, and more varied than ever before, and includes many new novelties, both foreign and domestic.

TRADES COUNCIL REPLIES TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Civic Organization Is Asked Why It Refuses to Cooperate in Some Manner to Help Settle Strike

The Federated Trades Council, through President J. K. Radley, Secretary H. A. Thompson, and a committee of six, yesterday sent a reply to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce in answer to resolutions adopted by the latter organization a few days ago in the matter of the present coal strike.

In its resolutions, which were published November 12, the chamber of commerce informed the Federated Trades council that it could not interfere in the strike situation and stated that "in the opinion of the directors, the federal authorities are already conducting a more thorough investigation than it would be possible for any chamber of commerce to carry out. These resolutions contained a set of resolutions asking the Trades council wherein the chamber of commerce was requested to immediately take up the question of arbitration between the coal miners and their employers and to investigate the recent advance in the retail prices of coal in this district."

Letter From Trade Council.
Yesterday the Federated Trades council sent the following to the chamber of commerce in reply to the resolutions adopted by the board of directors:

Executive Board of the Chamber of Commerce, Colorado Springs, Colo.: Gentlemen—With reference to resolutions adopted by your executive board which came to our ears and the press on November 12, we are compelled in justice to organized labor, and the public in general, to make the following reply:

The Federated Trades council represents in excess of one thousand labor people in Colorado Springs and vicinity who are working to the best interests of the public. We are at a loss to know why your executive board refuses to cooperate in some manner to help settle the coal strike, which, as you say, is of supreme importance to every citizen in the state.

Our aim in asking your body to appoint this committee to take up the matter of arbitration, and the recent advance of the retail price of coal in this district, was that your body lend assistance to the general movement in the state to arbitrate. (It is in harmony with the general interests of the public and the labor union movement.)

In clause two, you say that, through a special committee and various chambers over the state, you have kept in close touch with the strike situation. Such being the case, what was your executive board's reason for ignoring our invitation to attend the coal strike situation meeting, held in the Opera house on Tuesday evening, November 11, if you desired to be in touch with both sides of the question, and why, in clause five, you say that you are not prepared to assist the statewide movement to arbitrate?

Community Personally Interested.
In clause three, you agree with the Trades council that a coal strike of supreme importance to every citizen in the state is now in progress. We then ask to what part of the community you refer in clause five, wherein you say you cannot assist what part of the community not personally interested in the settlement of the coal strike?

"It is not now nor has it ever been the intention of organized labor in Colorado Springs and vicinity to in any way conflict with the state and federal authorities in their investigation of the fact, through investigation is what we desire and exactly what our aim were in asking your body to appoint the committee in question, and which you refused to do."

You say that your board of directors is voting on the proposition to appoint a committee that will benefit your members or the citizens of the state. Will you be willing to submit to a referendum vote of your 1,000 members as to whether they can take any action that will benefit your membership and the citizens of the state?

In clause 5 you say you stand ready to take any action necessary to protect the community at large, which may be threatened by this or any future strike controversy. We know of no violence now or contemplated in this district or recent insurrection that the labor people of Colorado Springs and vicinity do not have the interests of the public at heart.

Why Has Price Advanced?

If the ultimate retail price of coal (as you say) will be regulated by the terms of the final settlement of the strike controversy, we ask you to tell the public why, all in Colorado Springs advanced $1 a ton one month before the strike was called and why 48 cars of coal in the yards here, and paid for at the old price, is now selling at an advance of $2 a ton?

If, as you say, the ultimate price is to be so regulated, do you not think it wise for your body to make some effort to help settle the strike before prices have advanced further? In conclusion, we wish to state that organized labor in Colorado Springs and vicinity has progressed on their merits of the striking citizens and the moral support of the public at large. We take it for granted from your resolutions that you are not to expect any assistance from your honorable executive board.

Very truly yours,
J. K. RADLEY, President.
H. A. THOMPSON, Secretary.

TRADES COUNCIL REPLIES TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Civic Organization Is Asked Why It "Refuses to Cooperate in Some Manner to Help Settle Strike"

The Federated Trades Council, through President J. K. Radley, Secretary H. A. Thompson and a committee of six, yesterday sent a reply to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce in answer to resolutions adopted by the latter organization a few days ago in the matter of the present coal strike.

In its resolutions, which were published November 18, the Chamber of Commerce informed the Federated Trades council that it could not interfere in the strike situation, and stated that "in the opinion of the directors, the federal authorities are already conducting a more thorough investigation than it would be possible for any chamber of commerce to carry on." These resolutions followed a set of resolutions passed by the Trades council, wherein the Chamber of Commerce was requested to appoint a committee to immediately take up the question of arbitration between the coal miners and their employers, and to investigate the recent advance in the retail prices of coal in this district.

Letter From Trade Council.
Yesterday the Federated Trades council sent the following to the Chamber of Commerce in reply to the resolutions adopted by the board of directors: Executive Board of the Chamber of Commerce, Colorado Springs, Colo.: Gentlemen—With reference to resolutions adopted by your executive board, which came to our body and the press on November 12, we are compelled, in justice to organized labor and the public in general, to make the following reply:

The Federated Trades council represents in excess of one thousand labor people in Colorado Springs and vicinity who are working to the best interests of the public. We are at a loss to know why your executive board refuses to cooperate in some manner to settle the coal strike, which, as you say, is of supreme importance to every citizen in the state.

Our aim in asking your body to appoint this committee to take up the matter of arbitration, and the recent advance of the retail price of coal in this district, was that your body lend assistance to the general movement in the state to arbitrate. (If in harmony with the general interests of the public and the labor union movement.)

In clause two, you say that, through a special committee and various chambers over the state, you have kept in close touch with the strike situation. Such being the case, we ask why your executive board ignores our invitation to attend the coal strike situation meeting, held in the Opera house on Tuesday evening, November 11, if you desired to be in touch with both sides of the question, and why, in clause five, you say it does not seem that you can serve your membership by attempting to assist the statewide movement to arbitrate.

Community Personally Interested.
In clause three, you agree with the Trades council that a coal strike of supreme importance to every citizen in the state is now in progress. We then ask to what part of the community you refer in clause five, wherein you say you cannot assist that part of the community not personally interested in the settlement of the coal strike. It is not now nor has it ever been the intention of organized labor in Colorado Springs and vicinity to in any way conflict with the state and federal authorities in their investigation. In fact, a thorough investigation is what we desire and exactly what our aims were in asking your body to appoint the committee in question, and which you refused to do.

You say that your board of directors take voting on the proposition cannot take any action that will benefit your members or the citizens of the state. Will you be willing to submit to a referendum vote of your 1,000 members as to whether they can take any action that will benefit your membership and the citizens of the state? In clause 8 you say you stand ready to take any action necessary to protect the community at large, which may be threatened by this or any future strike controversy. We know of no violence now or contemplated in this district, and resent the insinuation that the labor people of Colorado Springs and vicinity do not have the interests of the public at heart.

Why Has Price Advanced?
If the ultimate retail price of coal (as you say) will be regulated by the terms of the final settlement of the strike controversy, we ask you to tell the public what coal in Colorado Springs advanced at a rate of one month before the strike was called, and why 45 cars of coal in the yards here, and paid for at the old terms is now selling at an advance of $2.00 per ton? If, as you say, the ultimate price will be regulated by you, do you think it wise for your body to make some effort to help settle the strike before prices soar still higher?

In conclusion, we wish to state that organized labor in Colorado Springs and vicinity has progressed on their merits of law-abiding citizens and the moral support of the public at large. We take it for granted, from your resolutions, that we are not to expect any assistance from your honorable executive board.

Terrors Win From South Denver, 19 to 6; U. C. Takes Conference Title, 20 to 0

LOCALS SHOW REAL CHAMPIONSHIP FORM BY OUTPLAYING SPEEDY TEAM

Sensational Run by Anderson in the Last Quarter Prevents Denver Shutout; Davis, Holman, Gray, Star

Displaying a tricky, crushing offense and a defense that was almost impregnable, the Terrors yesterday afternoon swept through the strong South Denver eleven and closed their season with a 19 to 6 victory. Speed, strength, gameness and good football, plus the individual play of several of the Terrors, made yesterday's victory a credit to the men who wore the brown and white, six of whom fought for the last time.

The Denver eleven displayed a far superior offense to that of the Boulder Preps, and while sporting writers are picking interscholastic champions, the Terrors should not be overlooked. Any team that could defeat the Terrors now would have to be better than any eleven that has played here this year.

The Terrors completely outplayed the visitors with the exception of the last quarter when Johnny Pike's men took a brace and due to the individual prowess of Halfback Anderson, who sprinted 50 yards to a touchdown on an end run, the Terrors' goal was crossed. Remarkable interference was the only thing that prevented the Brown backfield men from stopping the runner.

Forward Pass Not Successful. While the game had its open play, the forward pass did not prove as successful as last Saturday. Lendrum played through with a badly sprained ankle and could not run fast enough to get past the secondary defense of the Blue. But the other trick plays proved successful and the fear were introduced to one play that was worked probably the first time west of Carle.

Many Punts Blocked. The Terrors scores were scattered. Twice did the big line men, the Richardsons, Holman and Klemmendorson, break through the Denver defense and block the ball and make a touchdown from it. The first time came in the first period when Richardson tore through the line and blocked the kick and Klemmendorson picked up the ball and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. In the third period Klemmendorson broke through the line and blocked the ball.

This play even took the officials by surprise and many people in the stands did not realize that something entirely new to western football had been introduced by Dr. Arker. The play relies upon a rule allowing a player to run toward or obliquely toward his own goal. O. Richardson came out wide and keeping as close as possible to the line but still running at angle, started for his team. At a signal, given by himself, the ball was snapped and he shot off at an angle and spilled the two men on the line. Then an off-tackle line plunge, with three men running interference would tear through the hole. The first time the trick was tried Holman ran for a touchdown but the officials called him back, claiming an offside play. The second time it resulted in a good gain.

McIntosh Changes Sweaters. McIntosh, the big guard of the Terrors who never saw a football before this season, pulled a clever trick in the second quarter when he peeled his brown sweater and unbuttoned took his place among his teammates with a sweater similar to that worn by the South Denver players. However, as the next play resulted in a fumble, and McIntosh got the ball, the trick was discovered by the officials and hopeful visitors, who believed that a South man had the ball. McIntosh was ordered to put on his brown sweater.

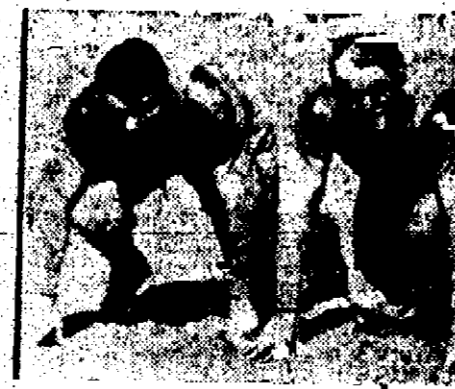

The Denver players displayed some good forward pass work. Andrews, the scrappy captain-quarter, revelling in leather. Several of the passes were for long gains, and in the last period the Terrors and their supporters received a scare when, through the use of overhead football and the individual play of Anderson, the ball was worked to the five-yard line. But the Terror line held and the visitors lost the ball on downs. Klemmendorson kicked out of danger. The Denver team excelled in one point that of interference. The college coaches could learn some lessons from this. The line, however, was paper, and many a well-aimed punt was blocked.

CORNELL AND WISCONSIN WIN CROSS COUNTRY RUNS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Cornell won the team championship in the sixth annual cross country race this afternoon of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America. R. S. Reed of Harvard won the individual championship.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22.—Wisconsin won the Big Nine conference cross country meet here today. Illinois was second and Ohio State third.

skirted the west sidelines for 40 yards. In the third quarter, from the 40-yard line, Davis attempted a drop kick, but the ball fell short. Bowen stole a long Denver pass in the third quarter and Denver, getting the ball on a penalty, was forced to punt. The line failed to hold and the ball was blocked and the last Terror touchdown was registered.

Of all the heroes in yesterday's game, "Dolly" Gray of the Terrors stood out most prominently. His defensive work was the best seen this year on Washburn field, and he broke up many well-directed Denver plays. His handling of punts was high class, and he ran them back with a vengeance. Davis also handled the punts with perfection, and his all-around work marks him not only as one of the greatest little field generals, but one of the surest tacklers and runners the school has ever produced.

Honors also go to Holman, O. Richardson, Klemmendorson and Captain Lendrum. Lendrum was handicapped with a bad ankle, but his playing was good, especially on breaking up of forward passes. The entire line played the best ball so far displayed this year.

The numerous conferences of officials and the amount of time taken out made the game somewhat tiresome to spectators.

And so the Terror season ends—one of the most spectacular in history.

The Gazette will review the season later this week.

FORWARD PASSES WIN FOR MINNESOTA OVER ILLINOIS; SCORE 29-9

Field Goal and Touchdown in Last Quarter Show Illini Comeback

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 22.—Minnesota won from Illinois today, by 29 to 9, after a desperate battle. Both teams used the forward pass most freely. Illinois, after three touchdowns had been scored by the Gophers came back strong in the last period and rushed their opponents off their feet, scoring one touchdown and keeping the invaders dazed by their play the rest of the time.

Minnesota, plainly stronger than Illinois, could not gain by straight football. Early in the first period, Captain Rowe for Illinois scored a field goal. In the second period, Rhanganess's forward pass gained a touchdown for Minnesota.

Forward Passes Win. In the third and early in the fourth periods the Gophers made two more scores, principally through forward passing. Then the tide of battle quickly changed.

The battle was fought on a slippery field, and the backs slipped and stumbled frequently but tumbling was infrequent. Minnesota resorted to kicking much more than the Illinois team.

The first half was slightly in favor of Illinois in ground gaining by straight football. During the third and fourth periods, Minnesota outplayed Illinois both offensively and defensively.

Rowe and Wilson, star performers for Illinois, showed well in their last appearance. Chapman and Watson played their usual strong game in the line. Minnesota, with Matern, Rhanganess and Selon, its leading lights, played great football. Wagner of Illinois was the hero of the fourth quarter. His spurt was responsible for Illinois' touchdown. Slikman showed his form of last year in passing the ball.

16 TIGERS AWARDED 'C'; ELECT CAPTAIN THURSDAY

Teams Will Be Banqueted After Game With Emporia; More Letters Given Than Usual

Sixteen Tigers made their letters during the conference season, a larger number than for several years. The team had its official photograph taken Friday, and will elect a captain Thursday night at the banquet to be given by Dr. A. A. Blackman. The choice for the position lies between Kramer and Cheate, and it is certain that there will be a selection of a player who will be able to make his own team next year. The men who were awarded "C" sweaters are Kramer, Ragle, O'Brien, Klemmendorson, Koon, Rose, Davis, Gibson, Bowers, Rosa, Balch, Claybaugh, Emsell, Cheate, Taylor, Van Stone and Miller (manager).

DREW EQUALS WORLD'S MARK

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Howard Drew of Springfield, Mass., equaled the world's record in the 120-yard run at the opening of the local indoor athletic season at the Thirtieth Regiment armory in Brooklyn tonight. His time was 12.4 seconds.

14 KILLED, 175 HURT, TOLL OF THE SEASON

Record Better Than That of 1912; Only Two University Men Killed

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Fourteen players were killed and 175 were injured in football games in the season which virtually closed today. This record of casualties is only slightly below that of 1912, when 15 players met death and 183 were injured. Only two university players were killed.

These figures were compiled from press reports and published here today. The injured include only those who suffered bruising, torn ligaments, severe strains and sprains and internal injuries.

Of the 14 deaths 13 succumbed to injuries occurring this year. Charles Switzer, formerly a Hamline university player, died November 17, at St. Paul, following a complication of disease, resulting from injuries several years ago. Other fatalities resulted with few from fractured skulls, broken necks or spinal injuries.

CURTAIN RISING ON INDOOR BASEBALL AND BASKETBALL

Basketball opened up with early season enthusiasm at the Y. M. C. A. last night, and four games were staged, all of which had their excitement. From present appearances, the basketball season is going to be the best in history. Last night's games resulted as follows:

Columbia second team, 22; Y. M. C. A. Junior Club, 20.
Y. M. C. A. employed boys, 15; Columbia first team, 7.
Y. M. C. A. "Lighters" 37; Deaf and Blind second team, 16.

Terrors, 46; Deaf and Blind School first team, 20.

Final arrangements for the organization of the school basketball league will be made Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A.

Indoor baseball will be started next week, and final arrangements for the organization of the city league will be made at a meeting of those interested at the association building Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. There will be more teams entered in the league this year, and the High School and street car men will be represented.

Mines, U. C. and Denver Freeze Out C. C. for Thanksgiving Dates

Colorado college will not be able to play Thanksgiving day games in Denver for six years. Colorado university, the School of Mines and Denver university have accepted a non-competitive Thanksgiving day schedule, securing an option on Union park for six years, and agreeing to share expenses for upkeep of the park. Each team will have two preferential dates each season, when it can meet any school.

Football relations between the state university and the Ministers will be resumed next year.

Colorado Springs fans will probably be able to see Thanksgiving football here for the next six years, although the teams to be met here will probably not be conference eleven.

CUBS STILL RETAIN RECORD

The Cubs, in winning the 1906 National league pennant, set a record which has not been equaled since, winning 116 games for an average of .763. The lowest figure that ever won a pennant in the National league was .603, by Hamilton's Brooklyn club in 1900.

Hamilton's 106 victories in the American league last year is the high water mark for games won in the junior major league.

From the World's Work

In consistent aid to the victims of every disaster, whether in time of peace or war, America leads the world and is the most beneficent of nations. The relief which came from foreign countries during the Chinese famine, in the winter of 1911-12, showed that in philanthropy we have a longer tradition than in business. The total amount of aid from foreigners in foreign countries was approximately $35,000,000.

"The sign is 'Use-all-exits'." It is supposed to be a recent version of the "joke." "This sign" was composed by the somewhat stout comedian, Herbert Bertell. Pioneer Ball.

This is the week of the Pioneer ball. It will take place Thanksgiving eve, next Wednesday, in Temple theater. "Buntings" have been resurrected and dusted for the event. Hoop-skirts and bustles rescued from their obscurity, swallowtails and cutaways, chokers, polonaises, basques, top boots, no boots, moccasins and fannel shirts, all will be worn. The wheel of Time will backward turn, and the pioneers, their sons and daughters, will live again the pleasures of the old time dance without the nervous strain of an Indian raid to mar their happiness. The good old time refreshments will be served, coffee, pie and doughnuts. Many heads will ache in the good old way in the morning. Mrs. Edwin W. Giddings and Mrs. E. J. Eaton will preside at the coffee table. Mrs. Andrew J. Lawton and Mrs. T. J. Fisher will pour coffee; Miss Alice Perkins, Miss Dorothy Price, Miss Matilda McAllister, Miss Dolly Eaton, Miss Lucile Keys, the Misses Bartlett, Miss Evelyn Lennox, Miss Lucile Fisher, Miss Anna Lennox and Miss Lydia Price will assist in serving.

A handsome prize will be given for the most typical pioneer costume. The judges to be Mrs. Edgar Howbert, Mr. E. W. Giddings and Mr. W. Arthur Perkins. Another prize will be given the most graceful pioneer dancer, the judges being Mrs. Frank Corbin, Mr. Henry C. Furman and Mr. A. M. Hobbs.

The grand march will be led by Mr. William L. Reilly, who led the march at the Shan Kive ball with such success. The dance program will include quadrilles, the waltz, schottische, redowa, mazurka, polka and the music will be furnished by an orchestra of cowboys.

Eighteen Covers.

Former Springs Girl Weds

Announcement has been received in this city of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mathilde F. Wagner of New York city, and Mr. Jesse A. Whitaker of New York city.

Miss Wagner lived in Colorado Springs for more than three years and during that time made many friends. The date of the wedding is December 1st and immediately after a trip will be made to Niagara, Central America, where Mr. Whitaker has large business interests. Upon their return to this country they will make their home in New York city.

Song of Thanksgiving

The lovely cantata, "A Song of Thanksgiving," by J. H. Maunders, will be sung tonight by the choir of Grace Episcopal church, augmented by other singers of the city. The choir sang this cantata two years ago to a crowded church room and it will undoubtedly be heard by as many as possible this evening. Miss Winifred Fairley will sing the soprano solos. Mrs. Ellen Spencer, alto, Mr. Frederick Brooge, baritone, Mr. Verne Hoppe, tenor and Mr. Duane Nelson, bass.

The complete program is as follows: Prelude No. 1, Mendelssohn; Processional Hymn, "Central America," Magnificat, West; Nunc Dimittis, West; Hymn 9, Dykes; Cantata, "Song of Thanksgiving"; Offertory, "The Holy City," Adams; Mass, Master James Murray; Second Hymn 192, Koehler; Postlude, "Marche Triomphale," Grieg.

The members of the choir are: Soprano—Charles Betton, James Murray, Selden Murray, Harry Brink, Ernest Fox, Lowell Collins, Russell Hunter, Jack Schwartz, Donald Holger, Charles Hill, James Albert, Harold Arkwright, Lawrence Chow, William Albert, Clifford Filbert and Frank Atter.

Altos—Mrs. Spencer, Miss Potter, Miss Hall, Miss Young, Miss Fuller and Miss Gilbert.

B. P. O. E. Dance

The Thanksgiving dance of B. P. O. E. 309 will be held Wednesday night at the club house. Elks who wish to secure invitation for their friends may do so by applying to Mr. Clarence Underhill, chairman of the committee on arrangements. Dancing will begin at 8 and continue until 12 o'clock after which a supper will be served.

The Nautical Knot.

Y. W. C. A. performance of the sea-faring play, "The Nautical Knot," were given this week at the High school auditorium under the direction of Miss Evelyn Lewis and Mr. Frank Stillwell Moore and the management of Mr. Grover Kinney. Some decidedly clever scenery was made and painted in the school departments and the lighting effect was worthy of special mention. Miss Irma Dakens and Miss Mary Caldwell in the leading roles were excellent. Also Max Shipman and Mr. Herbert. The show of the play under the patron of Mr. Moore was undoubtedly good and aroused much enthusiasm.

"Guest Night."

The members of the Monday Progress club, their husbands and other guests, were entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William W. Flora, Monday evening, the occasion marking the annual "guest night" of the club. The evening passed all too quickly, with a delightful program of music and readings, an elaborate supper and the telling of clever and original stories by the club members.

The rooms of the Flora home were attractively decorated with chrysanthemums and asparagus plumosa, yellow chrysanthemums in the living room and yellow shading to pink on the dining table. The program was given by Miss Mabel Lyons, pianist, who played three numbers from the Petite suite of Ole Olson and the Prelude in G minor of Rachmaninoff; Miss Anna Dickey, soprano, who sang two beautiful Scotch songs, "The Land O' Leal" and the ever-popular "Laddie," also "Had a Flower" by Lawrence Kelle and Scotch readings by Mrs. Van E. Rouse, "Young Lochinvar" and "What Nora Said." The club has been studying Scotch history and Scotch literature during the year and hence the Scotch tone of the program.

Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. N. N. Brumback, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cotten, Mr. and Mrs. Van E. Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Melville B. Clotworthy, Mrs. Carrie Bybee, Mrs. Harry L. Lewis, Mrs. J. C. St. John, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Ruby, Mrs. Ida M. Hamilton, Mrs. Laura H. A Smooth, White Skin That Defies Weather

(From The Woman Beautiful)
During the coming months of hibernating and intense cold, you who would keep your skin smooth, white and velvety, should turn your attention to my cold-cream. Nothing else will so effectively remove a chapped, roughened or discolored surface. It is gradually absorbing the weather-beaten color, the complexion is kept in perfect condition, and even the beauty of expression appears more pronounced. If your skin is blotchy, pimply, freckled, coarse, or over-weathered, why not shed it, and use my cold-cream, which is not shed, but is at any druggist's, will completely transform the most unsightly complexion into a smooth, soft, and beautiful one. The cold-cream, washing it off morning and night.

If weather, age or poor health has marred your face with wrinkles, here's good news. You can quickly remove every line by using a beautifying, refreshing lotion prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered salicylic acid in 1 pt. witch hazel. The firmer, smoother skin the more youthful appearance, even after one application. Will astonish you.

We wish to state that we have decided to retain our expert staff of tailors, which we brought here from New York city, for the remainder of the season. In order to do this we will make any ladies' tailored suit according to the very latest dictation of $30.00

This includes the very best of workmanship and fabric up to $2.00 a yard. Perfect fit and satisfaction guaranteed. If you wish more expensive materials, findings, etc., the difference will only be in the cost of the same. Why pay from $60.00 to $80.00 for a suit when you can save $20.00 or more at Harry Mills?

ASHAMED You can get rid of your blackheads in a few minutes. This sounds remarkable, but it is true. Sprinkle some norexin on a sponge, wet with hot water, rub off the blackheads. They will disappear. The norexin will cost fifty cents at your druggist. There are often hundreds of little blackheads in the skin which it is impossible to pinch out. This method, however, will get all these small ones, as well as the big ones, out.

BODY OF INFANT IS FOUND UNDER UNOCCUPIED HOUSE

The body of an infant girl supposed to have been smothered to death, was discovered Friday night under an unoccupied house at 512 Rosita avenue, Colorado city. The discovery was made by the owner of the house and he reported the matter to Coroner Lawrence Beyle, yesterday morning. The authorities are working on the case, but so far have been unable to find any clue or to establish the identity of the child. Coroner Beyle believes that the child was placed under the house Thursday evening. It was wrapped in a sugar sack which was fastened with two safety pins. Physicians say that the baby would have lived had it received proper attention. The house, which the discoverer was made has been unoccupied since June.

We Simply Must Have Room In Which to Display Our Christmas Goods

As you may know, this has been a year of great opportunities for live merchants. The almost unprecedented commercial conditions have compelled many manufacturers to take their lines direct to retailers, at, in most instances, less than jobbing prices. The result with us, buying heavier than ever before, buying extensively in lines before almost untouched by us. We simply couldn't help this heavy buying, when we thought of the appreciation you would feel in our efforts.

But Just Consider

Our position, with our usual well crowded store, we are finding ourselves short of room in which to store, and especially short of space in which to display some lines which we know you would like to see right now.

FRIENDS RIDICULE OF CRITICISM OF PLAY BROUGHT FORTH VEILLER'S WITHIN THE LAW

Unknown Newspaperman Steps to Front Ranks of Playwrights As Result of Jeers

By BAYARD VEILLER.

During a discussion at a dinner one evening three years ago of a certain "everybody" in New York, I brought upon myself the good-natured ridicule of the friends who were present by the assertion that I did not think very much of the play in question and, furthermore, that that sort of thing was the easiest stuff in the world to turn out.

"Well, if it is so easy," said Mr. Veiller, "why don't you write one yourself and make a little money for me?"

"Oh, very well, I will," I replied. "What is more, I'll do it in a month." (Chorus of loud jeers.)

Two days later I set to work and I finished the job in three weeks. "Within the Law" as it is acted today is substantially the same except for the first act, as the original manuscript I turned out in that time. Changes have since been made, but only in minor details, not in the general form. "Within the Law" in its original form was an attack on the jury system. The character corresponding to Gilder, the department store proprietor, was the judge who sentenced Mary Turner. It showed the case of a girl being railroaded to prison that the judge might get away on a hunting trip and that everybody also concerned might hurry through with their work. The judge pronounced sentence—three years—and it was to him, instead of Gilder, that Mary Turner made the speech that ends the first act.

Newspaper Experience Valuable.

I did not have to invent this. Such conditions exist and have existed for years. I know the whole police and criminal court system backwards, because I took to playwriting. I had long been a newspaper reporter and had "covered" headquarters in New York when Theodore Roosevelt was police commissioner. In no other way can one acquire such a thorough knowledge of and insight into the facilities that make our civilization hideous as by the work that falls to the lot of a police reporter. The next three acts developed naturally out of this situation, but it is only right to make due acknowledgment to Alexander Dumas, for, as every one knows, the idea of a person wrongfully convicted and imprisoned carrying out a systematic plan of vengeance is nothing but the plot of "Monte Cristo." The main difference is that it is a girl instead of a man. The fourth act I stole almost every incident in it from a matter of public record.

It was not until the play was finished that trouble really began. I was unknown. No play of mine had ever approached a success. Eventually Mr. Brady agreed to produce it, his idea being that Mary Turner should be played by Grace George, who had read the play and liked it. Said Mr. Brady: "This play won't do as it stands; it needs a good many changes. You haven't enough experience to make them. The only thing to do is to let George Broadhurst rewrite it." Of course this meant giving Mr. Broadhurst a third of the royalties. But I was willing to make almost any concession for the sake of having the play played by Miss George, which means a certain $9,000 or more a week box office return for almost any play.

Miss George Refused Division.

So Mr. Broadhurst, who is a very skilled dramatist, took the play and made what changes he saw fit. They were well done, but they entirely changed the meaning of the piece. Rehearsals started, and when Miss George read the new version she said: "This is not the play I accepted," threw up the part and refused to have anything to do with it. Emily Stevens then was engaged and gave an admirable performance in Chicago.

The play, however, did not do as well as we had hoped for. Whether or not this was owing to the changes made in it I won't pretend to say. But I went to New York terribly dependent. I told Mr. Brady I didn't believe the play had a chance in the present form. He grudgingly agreed with me, but refused, however, to let me make such changes as I saw fit. Then went to New York over with Ansel Selwyn, my pay broker and business agent.

Mr. Brady had said: "If you and Selwyn don't like the way I'm doing this play, why don't you buy it and run it to suit yourselves?" This remark I repeated to Mr. Selwyn. After much thought he finally said: "Buy it, do you thing if I give the play a really first-class production and a good cast you can put it over."

I said I believed it had a big chance under proper conditions. Negotiations for the sale of the play took about 10 minutes. Mr. Selwyn paid Mr. Brady $10,000 for the property and assumed the latter's contract with me, which called for unusually high royalty for a beginner—5 per cent of the first $4,000 and 10 per cent of all over that.

"Within the Law," Not Great Play.

So the matter was settled—I took the train that afternoon for Chicago, with color blanchie to do what I wanted to do—the happiest man you ever saw. I went to work at once. I took out all the change Mr. Broadhurst had made and restored the play to its original form. I pruned, revised and built up. Everybody in the world, stage doorkeepers, charwomen and mechanics, had suggestions to make

There is always a host of people willing to rewrite your play for you. Occasionally I even heard a good suggestion. What happened afterwards is now theatrical history.

"To be quite frank, I don't think 'Within the Law' is a great play. But I do admit that it's theatrically effective. And I think that is due to the fact that I went over it as carefully as I could during the weeks it was first in Chicago, tying up loose ends wherever I saw them and building the thing up.

None of us thought for a minute that 'Within the Law' would be the success that it is. We all looked for a moderate hit, and possibly a run until the holidays, but that we should sell out on the second night the play was presented in New York and never have an empty seat in the house for any performance, was beyond our wildest dreams. The play will make a fortune for Mr. Selwyn and his associates, and it's doing very well indeed for me, too, thank you kindly.

Has it accomplished anything else? What real good has it done? I don't know. I hope that it has served its sociological purpose. I feel very strongly that when a maker of plays has pointed out frankly and fearlessly a social situation that needs a remedy he has done his work. The stage is not the place for the discussions of reform, but I am quite sure it is a fine place to make their necessity known to the greatest number of people.

The plight of underpaid working girls has been known for years; brilliant thinkers have talked about it, but it remained for my bedraggled, tear-stained shopgirl on her way to prison, with glittering steel handcuffs on her wrists, and her reiterated "But you won't pay them enough to keep on," to make three of the largest department store proprietors in New York city establish a minimum wage scale of $5 a week in their stores. My play has done at least that much good.

The Ham Tree

The kings of laugh producers, McIntyre and Heath, who have been stage partners longer and more congenially associated than any two professionals known to the world, will appear here this season in John Galt's elaborate revival of the world-famous musical comedy, "The Ham Tree." To the million and a few more who have seen these intangible negro impersonators no recommendation is required. These two artists have been closely allied on and off the stage for 40 years. They are so familiar with each other's acts, movements and thoughts that their performance, which is so exact, might be classed as a perfect machine.

Some people wonder why a large proportion of the public visit their performance time after time, and apparently enjoy themselves as if they had never seen the production before. One never ceases to find seeing McIntyre and Heath, especially now that McIntyre has surrounded them, with a notable cast and the most marvellous dancing chorus this country has ever seen.

Work is progressing on the making of the first moving picture film to be released by the newly formed Cinegraph-Lerner Features Film company.

This film, a five-reel picture version of Hall's famous most successful book and play, "The Criminal," produced from a scenario written by Mr. Galt himself, is being written by a cast of moving picture actors of experience and great popularity, it being the company's intention to produce one of the first of a series of moving picture plays with a cast made up almost entirely of famous moving picture actors, and the next with a cast of famous stars from the legitimate theater, contrasting both of them with the first. The picture will be taken in various locations near Winthrop and Johnson, in Mississippi, sets to Philadelphia, then the majority of the interior scenes at the perfectly equipped Cinegraph studios in Brooklyn. I should like to see head of the Cinegraph company, and personally supervising the taking of the pictures, which will take two months in the making. Mr. Dumas will be assisted by Frederick A. Thomson, formerly stage director with David Belasco, and Frederick Shaw, stage director for the Lisher company.

One of the delights of "The Girl From Mummies," which comes to the opera house, is "Teach Me," the duet between Mr. Jackson Barry and Miss Nellie Walters in the second act. Mr. Barry and Miss Walters have as much fun in this duet as the audience does, so it is not hard to guess what they are being taught.

DRAMA AND OPERA IN NEW YORK

By EMORY S. CALVERT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Ordinary actors will retire gracefully from the limelight this week and give way to the two star attractions of society—the opening of the Metropolitan Opera house and the annual horse show at Madison Square garden. Of course I realize that a horse show should have no place in a review of the drama and the opera, and I don't propose to review the horse show. I merely mention it as a rival attraction, together with the opera, to the Broadway theaters.

On Monday night Broadway before the Metropolitan Opera house will be hocked with moters. The lobby will be filled with men in snoring evening clothes and brilliantly gowned women. Later will be the famous "Diamond Horseshoe" glitter with the season's first public exhibition of jewels—the bare shoulders. Never mind the gowns at the show. It is the jewels and showery that must be seen. At the horse show the gowns are the attraction. The horses, of course, are secondary.

La Gioconda and Signor Enrico Caruso will occupy the title roles of "Manon" the evening attraction at the Metropolitan Opera house, on Monday evening. Caruso will appear as the older dea Griek, still taking the role of Lescaut, with the cast filled by Missa, Spinkes, Duchene, Mauborg and Rother. De Segura, Rojas, Anagnan, Roschiglian and Begue, Townshill will conduct.

On Thursday evening New York will have the opportunity of hearing the tenor Giovanni Martinelli who will take the role of the first time on this side of the water as Rodolfo in "La Boheme." Miss Galt will appear as Mimì with Miss Bella Allen, Scott, Dolan, Pinckney and De Segura, accompanying.

For the debut of the new contract, Miss Margaret Ober, the management has arranged a production of "Lohengrin" for Friday night. Time promised will sing as Elsa, Ulric as Lohengrin, West as Frederick, Braun as the king, and Carl Schlegel, a new singer at the Herold, while Hertz will wield the baron.

In homage to the centenary of the Verdi that composer's "Un Ballo in Maschera" will reappear on the Metropolitan boards, having been laid aside for one season, at the Saturday matinee. New mise-en-scene and costumes, which have been provided for the event, will be provided and Missa, Destina, and Hemphill, and Caruso, Amato, Rother and other stars will sing. "Farsala" will be given as usual for the Thanksgiving matinee, with Hertz as conductor and Missa, Freestad, and West, Galt and Schlegel in the cast. Manager Galt-Capazza has arranged a concert master for the new season, Gino Nustrucci, for years in a similar position at La Scala, Milan.

This is the sixth season for Metropolitan under the direction of Giulio Gatti-Casazza. In addition to the usual performance to be given Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings and the Saturday matinee, there will be the usual series of Saturday evening performances at half prices during the second half of the season, which lasts until April 25. In addition to the performance of the Metropolitan company, performances will be given by the Chicago opera company on Tuesday evenings.

The Theaters.

The overworked and underpaid girl employee of a department store seems an unending theme for playwrights. The trouble with most of these productions is that each is exactly like the other. Perhaps some of them teach a moral lesson to the really underpaid girl who longs for the "gay life" and "pretty things" and is in doubt as to whether or not she ought to pay the penalty to obtain them. Perhaps these plays have some effect on the proverbially hardened hearts (according to playwrights) of the department store proprietors.

In some of the department-store-girl plays the heroine has a sick mother occasionally her whole family is ill or dying, or her brother, a more or less worthless vagabond, has stolen some money and must replace it or go to jail. However it is, the department-store-girl must have money and must have it, at once. There is, of course, always a smiling villain—the wealthy man, who is over anxious to work the ruin of a department store girl. Why the wealthy man should hang round a department store to persecute his victim when there are so many more fertile fields, is a trifle difficult to understand. But they always do in the department-store-girl plays. Sometimes the villain isn't a wealthy man who frequents department stores, but a degenerate agent of a bank of "white slavers." But when we get away from the department-store-girl production and come to the "white-slave" drama there is, however, a close link between the two. One might imagine that the department-store-girl playwright and the "white-slave" playwright copy producer cooperate. Here is a sample for the exchange of ideas so to speak.

Laurette Taylor, star of "Peg o' My Heart," appeared in a special performance of "By-Products," a one act play by Joseph Medill Patterson, for the approval of the Stage society of New York. The play was audacious on a Sunday and in order not to ruffle the Puritan-like feelings of the Metropolitan police, was called a "Peculiar rehearsal." Later the play was given for the benefit of the Actors fund.

"By-Products," which may go before the general public for approval before long, was witnessed by many actors, critics and persons prominent in the social world, who were let into the theater via the stage door. Every one had the uncomfortable feeling that somehow they were evading the law.

Sad to relate "By-Products" is a typical department-store-girl play. The heroine, Mary McLinda, earning $5.00 a week as a shop girl, lives in modest poverty. Her sister suffers with tuberculosis, and the baby—there is always a baby too, I forgot to mention before—is on the verge of the ague disease. The man from the installment house threatens to remove the McLinda kitchen stove unless the payments are forthcoming. Mary arrives at home just after the man has left. Mrs. McLinda, a scrubwoman, had requested the collector to return later, explaining that Mary would doubtless arrive in the meantime with her wages. Mary arrived, all right, but minus the wages. She had been to the opera with a wealthy man she met in the department store, and even then was waiting for her to make up her mind whether she would walk the "straight and narrow." To be certain that she didn't engage him the "wealthy man" elected to wait on the corner in his automobile.

While Mrs. McLinda is tearfully detailing the threatening remarks of the installment collector, that individual returns and threatens to immediately take the stove. Mary bids him wait, and rushing from the house, returns in a few moments with handfuls of money and a man's fur automobile coat.

The Little Cafe.

"Just Because It's You," might well have been the title of the "Little Cafe," which made its appearance at the New Amsterdam theater, Monday night. "Just Because It's You," is the title of a song sung in the third act of "The Little Cafe" and I now venture to make the prediction that it is a song that will be sung and whistled

The Girl From Mummies

Usually when a musical comedy has one or two good musical numbers everybody is satisfied. "The Girl From Mummies," which comes to the Opera house Saturday, December 3, has 16 real hits; six of them "There's A Reason," "On The Road to Philadelphia," "Teach Me," "Captivating One," "Homesick" and "The Girl From Mummies." "Homesick" and "The Girl From Mummies" are having a race for popularity, and from present indications it is going to be impossible to pick the winner. Each one of these numbers is the kind which create success.

The music is by F. A. Bohmhorst, and shows the refreshing originality with a whistly tunelessness which has made "The Girl From Mummies" a sure fire success. Combined with this is the book by J. A. Lacy, a book without a dull spot, a book with a real plot and with such sparkling comedy that every member of the company takes as much pleasure in each performance as does the audience.

Miss Olive Vail, America's favorite comedienne, heads the perfect cast, comprising such prominent artists as Franklin Bendison, Jackson Barry, John E. Frank, Francis McKenna, Miss Nellie Walters, Miss Erin Lacy, Miss Marjorie Dow and Miss Hazel Regan. Naturally, with such a production, it requires gorgeous setting and costumes, and in this respect Messrs. Sheehan and Beck have outdone themselves. The gowns including those worn by the chorus are each and all original creations, having been designed and created by Madame McSherrin-Hull, each gown being made and fitted for the individual girl who wears it.

from coast to coast within a brief time.

M. M. C. McLellan and Ivan Caryll are the authors of "The Little Cafe," Hazel Dawn and John E. Young, of "Punk Lady" fame occupy the title roles. Miss Dawn was the same attractive, charming young lady who appeared before us not so long ago in another reasonable musical comedy. The company was an excellent one, and the piece most elaborately staged. John Young was the waiter in a little cafe in Paris. He is left a fortune, but under the provisions of a contract, he must remain a waiter. His place of employment is an establishment that attracts much attention in the Parisian capital because of the loudly acclaimed beauty of the proprietor's daughter, played by Alma Francis. Young Albert, Loriflan, the waiter, is madly infatuated with the proprietor's daughter. The scheming proprietor of the cafe, having known that Albert was about to inherit a fortune, managed to tie the waiter to his job with a contract whereby if either party broke it he would have to forfeit 300,000 francs. Albert would have no particular objection to forfeiting the money now that he is wealthy, but Miss Francis as the proprietor's daughter makes his stay when the matter of the forfeit is considered, almost imperative.

Albert becomes a man about town to night. He entertains a queen of the all-night restaurants, played by Miss Dawn, and has a Hungarian singer fall in love with him for the way he spilled soup on her dress. The proprietor's daughter comes to the all-night restaurant where the spending waiter is holding forth, and Albert finally discovers that he is really a count and everything ends happily with his marriage to the proprietor's daughter, but not before he has fought a duel for her. Adolphe, a former classmate in "The Little Cafe" played by Harry Lepp, who accompanies Albert on his attacks on high society, contributes much humor to the piece.

"Tongues of Men."

When I came away from witnessing "The Tongues of Men" at the Harris theater, I bore with me only a confused jumble, in which beautiful prima donna, chorus girls and earnest young actors were hopelessly confused. Briefly, the "Tongues of Men" revolves about the attacks made upon a famous prima donna, played by Henrietta Crossman, by the youthful rector of a fashionable church, the Rev. Perfield Sturges, who has objected to her appearing as a reprehensible character in an operatic production.

The prima donna calls upon the rector and denounces him for his narrowness. They become quite friendly, and the rector, changing his views, writes to the mayor requesting him not to stop the opera, which the mayor was about to do as a result of the rector's sermon. For some unexplained reason, on a point upon which the author did not enlighten us, the rector is accompanied most of the time by his rather foolish friend, to whom the rector has made a half hearted proposal. To square himself the rector also proposes to the prima donna, but she manages to gracefully hand him back to his original sweetheart. The prima donna winds up by accepting another clergyman, of far more dignified manner and bearing than the Rev. Perfield Sturges.

"Gen. John Regan."

Here is a genuine satire, one that warms the heart and tickles the sense of humor. The fact that it had been a great success in England did not prejudice me against it, as well it might have. England is really appreciated because it was a satire on Ireland. The fact that it is a satire on Ireland is an American tourist's excuse to go to Northampton, where a small town, town, He asks to be shown the statue of Gen. John Regan. No such thing.

The Rosary

Every theatergoer in this city knows that "The Rosary" was the most talked-about play in the popular priced houses last season. This is a strikingly effective chord in the hearts of the people, and with its human interest qualities it proved to be immensely popular. Owing to last season's success, "The Rosary" will be repeated at the Opera house Thanksgiving day.

"The Rosary" tells a modest and unassuming story of how the watch and protective influence of a good priest ultimately restored the happiness of a home that had been wrecked by the evil plotting of one who coveted his neighbor's wife and sought revenge because his rival had won love of the woman to whom he had said suit in the days when she was free to choose between them. In constant action, the truth is made plain that suspicion increasing to what seems certainty of guilt is easily expended where even absolute innocence prevails, and the story's progress makes plausible its culmination in what seems irretrievable disaster.

Equally plausible, however, is shown the power of the influence of good fighting against evil. The exposition is so simply and plainly submitted that the play's story of battle between good and evil is made to possess the appeal of the earlier morality plays with which the stage had its beginnings. The title character, the Rev. John Kelly, is at every moment true to life, a real and watchful shepherd, solicitous of the safety of souls brave in the performance of his duty, fervent and uncompromising for the right.

ever exalted, but the enterprising natives of the town conclude to have such a statue, feeling that it might be a profitable investment as an attraction to tourists.

Complications then follow in rapid order. A marble figure lying in the yards of a manufacturer of portrait statues, which the departed had been unable to pay for, is utilized. The village is anxious to get a new pier, and now feels that it is hearing its own since the lieutenant governor will have to come to town to unveil the statue of General Regan. The lieutenant governor, however, learns there never was a "General Regan," and demands a apology, holding the invitation to the unveiling to have been an insult. The American tourist then admits that the whole thing was a hoax.

The Lure

"The Lure," the white slave drama recently produced by Messrs. Shubert, will be shown at the Opera house next Saturday.

Mr. Stanley W. Finch, special commissioner in charge of the federal bureau for the suppression of white slavery, gave the following statement to the various representatives of the New York papers, after he had seen a performance of the play.

"I heartily believe in the presentation of such plays as 'The Lure' because I feel an honest presentation in graphic form of this hideous subject will do far more to stir the people in general than treatises or books can do." When asked about the case presented in "The Lure," Mr. Finch stated "that far from being an exaggeration of conditions it was the simplest and most ordinary sort of problem, and that such instances came to his notice every day."

DUCHESS OF PORTLAND

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Duchess of Portland has new mistresses of the roses. Queen Mary has just those stately dignities everywhere meeting with favorable comment.

The mistress of the roses, who must be a duchess has the duty of standing next to the queen in state occasions. She has the made of good under her control at times as small as a poppy, with the countess to be of countenance of a countess in high places.

It is said that the Duchess of Portland stipulated when she was named for that she be allowed of the job of sticking with marionettes, which traditionally and of olden times formed a part of the duties of the mistress of the queen's wardrobe.

Cripple Creek Mines

ANNA MAY WELLS IS UNDER ACTIVE LEASE

JOHNSON AND ASSOCIATES
WORKING RAMONA LODE

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 22.—J. M. Hemby and D. O. Darnell, holding a lease on the Anna May Wells, one of the Wild Horse group of mines controlled or owned in part by the United Gold Mines company, are prospecting at surface, on that hill property.

D. O. Darnell, in 1903, when leasing on the War Eagle claim, adjoining the Anna May Wells to the south-west, opened up and extended heavy tonnage of ore from the surface pit and in the following year opened up the vein system lying below the surface deposit. This ore body, thoroughly oxidized, held horizontal dimensions of not less than 20 feet by 40 feet, and was not to exceed 25 feet deep and on level 1, below the surface deposit Darnell took out in excess of 200 tons of ore from one small ore shoot that averaged about 25 to the ton. The War Eagle vein opened up at greater depth extends northeast through the Ramona and Anna May Wells, and Darnell may be depended upon to open up ore, if the vein carries values as he is thoroughly conversant with the existing conditions in this section.

WATER IS LOWERING IN THE GOLD COIN

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 22.—Measurements have been taken at the Gold Coin shaft of the Granite Gold Mining company, and the water was found to have fallen to a point 78 feet below the 1,100 foot level, where work is now being carried on by the company. A mine is being sunk on the main level and the showing is reported to be good for future production, and with the 1,200 foot level recovered, the ore body exposed will be more thoroughly exploited.

The upper levels of the Gold Coin shaft, operated by a number of leasees are producing steadily and a good average grade of ore is sent out from the mine.

The Upper Granite mine is also active under lease, and Cobb and Rapp, operating a block at the 700-foot level are mining and shipping a good average grade of milling ore, and the output is holding at better than three cars a week.

The Dillon mine of the Granite company, another lease property, is producing a good average grade of milling ore, and the output is holding at better than three cars a week.

The Monument mine is also active but at this time due to the development undertaken by the leasee, is producing but light tonnage.

A vast amount of development work is now under way, and promises to result in greatly increased output from the Granite group of mines.

MOLLIE KATHLEEN
LESSEE IS SHIPPING

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 22.—Jerry Bolly and associates, lessees on the Mollie Kathleen mine on Tenmile Hill have loaded out a car of ore at the Gold King shaft. The values are estimated at better than one ounce gold to the ton. The ore body under development along the Gold King basement dike, is opening up strong, and the values are also improving, the mine samples returning values as high as two ounces gold to low milling ore value.

The El Paso Gold King, under lease to Owen Roberts, was also shipping today, and a car was loaded out from that mine by team.

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The stock market was quiet for a close week of dullness which for this season of the year is almost unparalleled.

Today's trading was as colorless as the preceding sessions and price changes among the active stocks were trifling. The amount of business was only about 50,000 shares.

The market appeared to be impervious to the influence of adverse factors. London's influence in this market was neutral owing to the irregularity of American stocks abroad, and on account of foreign trading here. A disturbing feature was the acute weakness of various industrial stocks of which Mexico Petroleum was most conspicuous. Within a few minutes after the opening the stock broke 2 1/2 in within a fraction of its low record. Subsequently it rallied.

The apparent indifference of the market to these influences was ascribed to the stability which it derived from the short interest built up recently. Although there was little evidence of efforts to force up quotations, stocks improved fractionally throughout the active list. Late selling of Reading and Union Pacific brought about a reverse movement, however, so that the close showed no definite tendency.

The bank statement was disappointing. Although a substantial cash gain had been indicated by American bank reports of currency, there was an actual loss of $1,477,000. Loans increased $21,744,000 which presumably reflected the financing of the week and the net result was a loss of $1,477,000.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The week's stock market dealings were the smallest of the season for this season of the year. Price changes were irregular and, as a whole, unimportant. Money worked easier, but applications for capital were confined to absolute necessities. The quick success of a sale of bonds guaranteed by the Pennsylvania & New Haven indicated a tendency toward improvement in the investment market. A fresh fall in French rentes discouraged hopes of early easing of capital stringency, for which success of the forthcoming French loan is relied on.

Steel and copper prices declined again, and working forces at steel mills were reduced. Heavy shipments of currency to New York indicated trade contraction. Customs payments failed to show expansion of imports under the new tariff. Increased estimates of the cotton crop resulted from the ginning figures.

The expected crisis in Mexican relations receded again, and this factor once was of less force as a market factor. Amendments to the currency bill left its final form still uncertain and its definition delayed.

The inactive speculation proved that investors in sight already had been discouraged.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Liberal export sales at New York and fear of black tide in Argentina had a bullish effect today on the buyers of wheat. The market, after showing weakness early, closed firm at a range varying from last night's figures to 1/2 advance.

Corn finished 1/2 to 3/4 up on unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions irregular, sitting out from decline to a rise of 2 1/2 to 3.

Many wheat traders who were uncertain at the outset changed after to the opinion that, for the next six months, importing nations would require increasing supplies of wheat from producers able to make prompt delivery. Canada and Russia, it was pointed out, were soon to be locked for ice, and other winter conditions, for at least five months, leaving the burden of supply almost heavily on the United States. Argentina and Australia, Rosario dispatches telling of a jump in wheat prices here and referring to changes of serious damage from black frost acted as more than an offset for early reports of Argentine weather was favorable for growth. The amount of wheat held by farmers in the Dakotas and Minnesota was only 36,000,000 bushels, as against 140,000,000 a year ago.

Corn prices hardened on account of receipts being light and because of firmness at Liverpool, due to bullish reports from Russia and the Danube. For a while, however, mild weather and doubtful prospects regarding foreign demands kept the trade in a bearish position. Oats merely reflected the course of corn. Much of the time demand was scattered.

In provisions, shorts covered but the influence of higher prices for hogs and a handicap on prices. Offerings of lard by a leading packer were so plentiful as to be somewhat oppressive.

THE BRAIN OF A BATTLESHIP

Cross Section of Warship Erected to Show Electrical Equipment.

From the New York Telegram.

Among the interesting exhibits at the electrical exposition and motor show at the Grand Central place is what might be termed a cross section of the brain of a United States battleship. More than $10,000 has been expended in demonstrating to the public every detail of the workings of a war vessel's system of conveying to the parts of the vessel the orders of the commander.

The navy department has caused to be constructed on the second floor of the Grand Central place the bridge of a battleship in regular working order and with all the equipment necessary to maneuver a vessel. From the apparatus which controls the searchlights, or even of the vessel at night to the electric fire control and engine room connections the bridge equipment is complete.

In another part of the exhibit the thousand and one pieces of apparatus of which the naval electrician must become a master are displayed, and a squad of experts from the Brooklyn navy yard has been detailed to explain everything to those who attend.

A fascinating part of the exhibit is a wireless apparatus from the navy yard. It is an official government station with the official call N. F. S. Weather reports and other news are received daily and published in a daily paper printed at the exposition.

According to two English scientists the sense of smell in man is small when compared with animals because of the practice of kissing and gradually is being destroyed for that reason.

From the apparatus which controls the searchlights, or even of the vessel at night to the electric fire control and engine room connections the bridge equipment is complete.

In another part of the exhibit the thousand and one pieces of apparatus of which the naval electrician must become a master are displayed, and a squad of experts from the Brooklyn navy yard has been detailed to explain everything to those who attend.

A fascinating part of the exhibit is a wireless apparatus from the navy yard. It is an official government station with the official call N. F. S. Weather reports and other news are received daily and published in a daily paper printed at the exposition.

According to two English scientists the sense of smell in man is small when compared with animals because of the practice of kissing and gradually is being destroyed for that reason.

Cross Section of Warship Erected to Show Electrical Equipment.

From the New York Telegram.

Among the interesting exhibits at the electrical exposition and motor show at the Grand Central place is what might be termed a cross section of the brain of a United States battleship. More than $10,000 has been expended in demonstrating to the public every detail of the workings of a war vessel's system of conveying to the parts of the vessel the orders of the commander.

The navy department has caused to be constructed on the second floor of the Grand Central place the bridge of a battleship in regular working order and with all the equipment necessary to maneuver a vessel. From the apparatus which controls the searchlights, or even of the vessel at night to the electric fire control and engine room connections the bridge equipment is complete.

A Bulgarianian Design for a Collar and Cuff Set

A Wheelbarrow Made from a Refrigerator

By Reinhardt.

I have a family that I know of, an old refrigerator was changed into a wheelbarrow. This refrigerator was the first present given by a father to his family. It was a fine piece of furniture, in order to give to her the education and associations he desired. It was always more than merely a refrigerator to his mother. As the years went by and the family increased in size, it was declared by the younger members of the family to be "too good" for the kitchen. A search through the old box of treasured-up hardware revealed some old iron handles, which had at one time been attached to a bureau. Two of these were screwed fast to each side of the long handles, and shaped pieces of wood fastened on the boards on the outside. They then slipped through. No amount of tipping one way or the other would dislodge these parts now. A pipe that had connected the water and the spigot in an old ice-cream machine was almost the right size for an axle, but it was too short. Nothing else being found in the box of odds and ends, a piece of metal had to be bought from an electric light firm. It cost only a few cents. The two legs were made firm by means of two shelf brackets, no longer in use. Two coats of dark green paint were now given it, and it was pronounced finished, not a thing of beauty, but of great service. It could be taken apart and put together within three minutes.

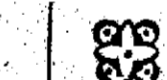

At last the day arrived when it was taken apart, and all but the handles packed securely in a box and sent by freight to the seashore home. The handles, which were too long for the box, were wrapped in paper and carried by the owl.

One of the most delightful tasks to which this wheelbarrow was put at different times was that of carrying the dishes and food down on the sand for a beach supper, for a moonlight class-bake or for gathering drift wood to burn in the old-fashioned openfire stove. No matter whether it is, or is not, a thing of beauty, it is a joy to use.

right length for the loose boards on each side of the wheelbarrow. The back was plain, and accordingly it did nicely for the bottom. Two long arms, or handles, were made from a rug pole, which had been in the cellar for years. It was entirely too thick, but was planed off on all sides, and the part to be held by the hands was sandpapered. A screw and nut held the pieces together, for not a nail was put into any part of the wheelbarrow.

The sides and front offered the greatest difficulty, however, for they would not remain in place, especially the latter, since it had to be on a slant. A search through the old box of treasured-up hardware revealed some old iron handles, which had at one time been attached to a bureau. Two of these were screwed fast to each side of the long handles, and shaped pieces of wood fastened on the boards on the outside. They then slipped through. Eleanor Norris' Answers to Correspondents

Table Decoration.
You could make very pretty candle shades with crepe paper. The crepe paper, which is covered with autumn leaves, could be made in shades, which would be not only particularly appropriate for this season of the year, but also very easily made.

For the foundation, use a stiff paper or thin cardboard. On this paper draw a semi-circle, to the top of which, when lapped and joined, will fit over the top of the shade. Then draw another semi-circle from the same point, the lines of the two circles being three and one-half inches apart. Cut out the foundation shade, lap it, holding in place by stitching with thread and needle.

Now cut the Autumn leaves out of the crepe paper and paste them on the paper foundation. Begin at the bottom of the shade, allowing the leaves to project over the edge. Paste them around and around, each row slightly overlapping the previous row. A set of Autumn leaf shades would make the table particularly attractive. These shades should be used over incandescent protection, so there will be no danger of their catching fire. Place cards can be made to match the shade, by pasting two of the cut out leaves together with the right side out. Write the names of the guests on small slips of paper, paste in the center of the leaves and then with a case knife, slightly curl the edge of the leaf. These leaf place cards will add to the beauty of the decorations.

Place Cards.
Pretty and place cards are still being used, especially those which have been made into a novelty by adding touches a little out of the ordinary. Since you are familiar with the use of the paper, there is no reason why you should not have a very large set of pretty place cards, when entertaining for a party. You can make them in many different ways, and they will make the party more interesting.

Silk Buttons.
Embroidered silk buttons for a button set are just as popular as a decorative trimming and some very pretty effects are seen in these.

The shirred silk button is very attractive and could readily be made by anyone at all handy with the needle. Cut a circle of silk and in the center make a shirring, then at a short distance make another circle of shirring. Continue shirring in this way until the circle is large enough to cover the button mold. The silk must be cut so large that there will be plenty of silk to cover the back of the mold. The silk is brought to the back of the button and gathered in the center, allowing about an eighth of an inch below the gathering shirring to form the shank of the button. Another pretty button can be made by using buck shirring, making it in circles a little wider apart than the plain shirring. It will be a little more tedious to make, but the result will be a very decorative button. It will look like a flower, and would be especially nice for dressy frocks and evening wraps.

Bulgarian Stitch.
Bulgarian stitch is not new, but since Bulgarian embroidery has attained such a prominent place among the embroideries, it is being used more and more. It is a stitch used to embroider flower stems and leaves. The stems are made by a series of small stitches, and the leaves are made by a series of larger stitches. The result is a very decorative and attractive effect.

er width would be the correct size for a velvet cover. About three inches from each end, put a five-inch strip of the Chinese embroidery, and in the center of the scarf applique a hollow square or circle of the embroidery.

It would be best to cut a plain paper pattern in circular or square form and fit it to the center of the velvet, so as to secure the correct size, then cut the center out of the paper. Make careful measurements so that the paper pattern will be right. Using this as a guide, cut out the embroidery and apply to the velvet.

The embroidery is first sewed to the material, then a brown gump is applied at the outer edge of the embroidery.

The brown gump is also used to finish the entire edge of the scarf. The scarf is then lined with a soft silk.

Crochet Pattern.
Mrs. R. K. Crochet work of all kinds will be given from time to time as the space of the paper permits, but could not give the exact date of the pattern you wish.

You request will, however, be granted when possible.

were woven with the lace. A good flat crochet edging, made with thread matching the mesh of the lace, may be substituted with good effect for the flat insertion. This kind of edge should also be applied perfectly straight.

Thirteen pieces constitute a set, six tumbler doilies, six plate doilies and one center or square. If the full dozen is needed then the set would consist of twenty-five pieces.

Evening Bag.
Mrs. W. J. A most attractive and good looking evening bag could be made with the piece of Paisley, combined with white satin.

Make the bag in a rectangular shape, a trifle longer than it is wide, and also slightly wider at the bottom than the top. Less than one-half of the bag and the envelope-shaped flap are made of white satin, while the Paisley forms the remainder, extending up the side to over one-half the depth of the bag.

The bag is lined with white satin and finished all around the edges with a white silk cord, a knot of white silk cord also covers the fastening of the flap. The handle of the bag is made of the white cord braided.

The Paisley carries out the effect of the Oriental coloring and the bright, rich tones so much in vogue.

Anyone possessing a small piece of Chinese or Japanese embroidery, such as a piece of a kimono, or a piece of a shawl, could also make an effective lining for a bag.

Chain Stitch for Mending.
Mrs. G. H. Mend the sweater with chain stitch, and with a matching needle. The chain stitch is a very popular and attractive stitch, and is used for mending.

Coiset Bag.
A coiset bag is a very popular and attractive bag. It is made of coiset fabric and is used for a bag. It is a very decorative and attractive bag, and is used for a bag.

at the top. Merely turn back the top for a casing.

Fold the bag in half and midway between the top and the center apply a band of five-inch satin ribbon, feather stitching it at both edges to the silk. Either white or pink silk can be used for the feather stitching. Another pink satin band is placed midway between the center and bottom of the bag.

A pink ribbon draw string matching the satin bands in color and quality is run through the casing. At the base of the casing, opposite the end where the draw strings are tied, a satin rose is sewed to the bag. This forms a most effective decoration, when the bag is drawn up, for the ribbon bow is at one side of the casing and the rose at the other side.

It would take very little time to make a bag of this sort and would be an excellent way to utilize the remnant of Dresden ribbon.

Ribbon Slippers.
Mrs. A. M. The ribbon slippers require one and one-half yards of five and one-half inch ribbon, two yards of one and one-half inch ribbon and one yard of one and one-half inch ribbon for the bunch of each shoe and leaves five-eighths of a yard of one-inch elastic and a pair of slippers.

On the ribbon into two parts and sew them together, then rather one side to fit the edge of the sole and overlap to the side. The top edge is turned to the wrong side to the depth of a inch and one-half. The casing for the elastic is made at the lower part of the turned-back section, while the remainder forms a strap at the top of the slipper. The elastic is run into place, and then the slipper is ready for turning.

Fold the one-inch rose-colored ribbon through the center, then wind it around and around the end of the ribbon until the ribbon is turned. These little roses are made by taking a yard of green ribbon and cutting it into two parts and sewing them together, then rather one side to fit the edge of the sole and overlap to the side. The top edge is turned to the wrong side to the depth of a inch and one-half. The casing for the elastic is made at the lower part of the turned-back section, while the remainder forms a strap at the top of the slipper. The elastic is run into place, and then the slipper is ready for turning.

SHOULD GREAT KINGS OF FINANCE RECEIVE SALARY OF MORE THAN $25,000 A YEAR?

$25,000 a year—is any man worth more than that? Charles S. Mellen, recently retired as president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has brought down upon his head a torrent of arguments, abuse and ridicule by his recent declaration that no man, in his opinion, can be worth more than $25,000 a year to any corporation.

How much would John D. Rockefeller be worth to some rival of the Standard Oil company if the services of the wizard of organization were for sale? How much would a rival banking concern, or a foreign banking concern, have paid the late John Pierpont Morgan for seating himself at a desk in their counting room a few hours every day?

How much could a shrewd business man pay to have the epoch-making Isn't Colonel George W. Goethals, the army engineer who has probably saved the United States $100,000,000 in the building of the Panama canal, worth a sum which would make $25,000 a year look like an office boy's wages?

These and a thousand other searching questions are snowing under the bold Mr. Mellen. So far, he hasn't been able to find anybody to agree with him—and probably won't.

Believe the paying of tremendous salaries to corporation officials is a waste of money, asserted Mr. Mellen. He believes that no man in the country is worth more than $25,000 a year. I know that it would work fully as hard for the New Haven railroad for $25,000 as I did for $60,000 or $75,000.

That last statement is probably true. Twenty-five thousand dollar a year men aren't a rule shirkers. But the New Haven railroad is afraid—literally afraid—to pay Mr. Mellen's too much—that he had the handling of $400,000,000. He said these assets were more than the combined assets of the largest banks in England, France and Germany. This last statement was found to be inaccurate, but the remark brought out some astonishing revelations of the inconsistencies of the salary question.

It was found that the salary of the director of the Bank of England is $10,000 a year, while the president of the Imperial German bank received a modest $7,500.

Furthermore, if Mr. McCurdy's theory, that the president's salary should be proportionate to the company's assets were true, the head of the Standard Oil company would have received at that time $225,000 a year, and the head of the United States Steel corporation $225,000. And on the basis simply of the money in circulation, a small fraction of the assets of the

CRAMPS, HEADACHE, BACKACHE,

Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"I was always tired and weak and my housework was a drag. I was irregular, had cramps so bad that I would have to lie down, also a distressed feeling in lower part of back, and headache. My abdomen was sore and I know I had organic inflammation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have helped me wonderfully. I don't have those pains any more and I am all right now. There are a great many women here who take your remedies and I have told them what they have done for me."—Mrs. CHAS. McKINNON, 1013 N. 5th St. W., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Women who are suffering from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultants) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a doctor and held in strict confidence.

be a limit to the salaries of men in big corporations trading with the public. The public won't stand for the phenomenal in that respect.

"What must a man do to earn $50,000 a year?" said James R. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, whose salary is reported to be that sum annually. "He must just earn it."

Theodore P. Shonts, head of New York city's greatest rapid transit system, said in reply to the same question:

"He must convince the other fellow that he must have it."

Elbert T. Gary, most powerful man in the United States Steel corporation as chairman of the board of directors, who drew $100,000 at one time and probably still does, avers that there can be no limitation of dollars and cents in estimating values where a really capable man is concerned. He once said:

"The tendency of the business world is not to search for men who will take low salaries, but to find men who deserve high salaries."

"Can we doubt that any of the great banks of the world could well have afforded as a matter of sound business, to pay the late J. Pierpont Morgan $100,000 a year for his undivided services?" in his judgment, Mr. Morgan's services, viewed from the commercial standpoint, would make a salary of $100,000 a year look small."

Charles M. Schwab, once president of the steel corporation, was remarkable for the large salary which he received at the age of 40 years; considered young for a big executive. At first reports his salary was placed at $100,000 a year. Later it was learned he received $100,000 plus a contingent fee estimated to be worth about $125,000 a year.

PRESENT CIVILIZATION ANTI-CHRISTIAN--SHAW

Christianity Disappeared From World, He Says, at Crucifixion

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Bernard Shaw's latest fulmination is a denunciation of present civilization as intensely anti-Christian, and as asserting that the crucifixion destroyed the last vestiges of Christianity.

"All our existing civilizations," he says, "are elaborate organizations for the prevention of Christianity. Our police and our soldiers, all the coercive forces that we have at our disposal, progress to suppress murder and theft, and they do not. They do not profess to prevent Christianity, but they do."

"I want to point out to you that the crucifixion was a great political success. It seems to have absolutely destroyed Christianity. It was meant to do so by the Jews, with the assistance of the Romans."

"Probably Pontius Pilate did not mean anything particular about it, or care particularly about it. But with his assistance the crucifixion took place, and Christianity practically disappeared from the world."

"Is it worth undoing the work of the crucifixion, and, after the lapse of 2,000 years, during which Christianity has been suppressed by organized force, to make an attempt to take on the profession of Christianity and see what we can do with it? If we attempt to do so as Christians with a continuation of the historic Christianity then I think we shall fail. I think we shall be beaten out of the field by other forces, some of them intensely hostile to the Christian ideal. I think, in short, we shall have to make a new beginning."

"God is a person who cannot be insured. What I mean by that is that he has to stand by his mistakes."

"If we could realize what it would be if the director of the whole universe went mad, or if, to put it another way, he went wicked, perhaps we should begin to have some sort of idea of what is the matter with the world at the present time, and the matter is that God in most of us is mad and wicked."

"I am inclined to think that to abolish revenge and punishment would make things rather worse for the world. If we give up punishing people and revenging ourselves on people, people will go about the world seeking in vain for punishment. They will go about with their guilt around their necks. At the present time a man may steal, and at the end of three months he is an honest man."

Set in the back of a novel hair brush is a hinged comb that may be raised for use when desired.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

TAKE A TABLESPOONFUL OF SALTS IF BACK PAINS OR STAGGER BOTH ARE

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric acid so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

New Order Of Flagellants Castigates Golfers

Royal Game of St. Andrews Survives Iconoclastic Attacks on Tees, Mashers, Divots, Brassies and Four-somes - Last Excursions on Links with Golf Immortals.

BY BILLY MURPHY.

Although the late Mr. Andrew Lang preferred ghosts and other psychic things as raw material for his pen, he occasionally made very delightful excursions into more prosaic literary fields.

And, indeed, the glamor of his style raised the most commonplace subjects towards the region of supernatural.

About golf, for instance, of which distracting game he appears to be a somewhat unwilling victim of the duffer class (this is his own characterization), he throws a new haze of mystery in the course of a murderous attack upon it.

As a direct result of his anatomization, a new order of flagellants has arisen, with the purpose in life of castigating golf and golfers.

According to these iconoclasts, the game can't be learned, the golfer being born instead of made.

The critics avow that intellect is wasted on it.

The patient study of books and diagrams and the muscular distortions grotesquely known as "form" affected by professionals, is time absolutely thrown away.

Those "idiocrits" point out that the great Ray declares that golfers play the game too seriously.

"Forget your brains, toss out the seriousness and just hit the ball—that's the fellow that plays the game," says Ray.

"The great players, today, don't rely on the brain, precise tactics—it's just view the land, grasp your stick and take a poke at the ball. One must never look a great deal and the fault I most notice among the golfers is the ceremony taken to play the game. I would advise everyone to forget brains and form and hit the ball."

The iconoclasts put themselves on the "back" after hearing Ray's statement and say, "I told you so."

They then go on to assert that the only essentials for the game of St. Andrew are an empty head and good temper.

Neither of these can be obtained through mental or manual training.

INTELLECTUAL AND NOT GREAT GOLFERS.

Sociologists are never good golfers and intellectual people should stay out of the links.

And for fear the serious will not attempt in this to express their own feelings, the new order of golf at the point out that the most a full grown man in the world can accomplish is to make a good masher, a good divot, a good four-some, etc.

If golf survives, the prevailing sentiment being handed out by the critics, one good result will follow its castigation.

The healthy condemnations of golf will help to keep it from becoming a more serious game than it is now.

they were earned, not found. But there are other sides to this great game than the one which is presented by the iconoclasts.

When a game in fifteen years moves from 50 active participants to a roll call of at least 250,000, it must be a fairly pleasing occupation and of some interest to at least a few folks.

It is estimated that nearly $20,000,000 is spent on golf in the United Kingdom alone each year and that of this huge sum only a little less than half, or $12,500,000 goes to the caddies.

In the United States the estimate has been made that $6,250,000 is spent for golf balls, $625,000 for clubs.

Each golfer's expenses are placed at over $100 a year and his railway fares and other ways of reaching the links are impossible of compilation.

GOLF IS GREATER GAME THAN BASEBALL.

Did you ever stop to think what a really great game golf is? Baseball is a beautiful game, but the golfers should play it with a will.

His body, says the critic, is strong and his mind is clear and then he can play the game.

But the iconoclasts know that nowhere will they find a golfer who is not a professional. The trees, the grass, the mowers and the caddies make the game a professional one.

At the end of a golf would not be a golfer who is not a professional. The trees, the grass, the mowers and the caddies make the game a professional one.

"I was walking in with them," says our informant. "When Ray was driving, Quinnet was with him."

"Well, 'Atty, you and I should have quite a battle for this ball," said our informant.

nounced regarding the movement, but it is reported that one of the leading golf clubs in this country is referring the idea to the British golf authorities and that an offer already of a cup has been made by the American club.

British golfers, both men and women, have at times during the last ten years played more or less frequently in American tournaments and Americans have made still more frequent appearances in England, but the contests have lacked the well-defined arrangement which would be brought about by competition along the lines of the Davis Cup series.

The women golfers attracted unusual attention this year on account of the visit of the English women.

It was a very pretty split of honors, just as if it had been made to order—that Miss Gladys Ravenscroft and Miss Muriel Dodd made of their invasion of the American continent. Miss Dodd won the Canadian championship at Montreal and several weeks later at Wilmington, Del., Miss Ravenscroft won the national championship of the United States. It was the one real opportunity England has had to cheer in a year of athletics that has been singularly a successful one for the United States.

Between Poets. Two poets sat having a frolic game. "I wish Burns and Poe were with us tonight," said one. "We could have a rollicking time." "I'd rather have Croesus here," said the other. "He could buy a few drinks. Those other fellows wouldn't have a egg."

Time Reading. "Football may be a great game, but I don't enjoy reading about it." "Why not?" "The writers describe it with such a dearth of slang."
